Diversity and inclusion

The perspectives, experiences, and insights that students from different backgrounds bring to the study of inequality and social policy are vital to the generation of new ideas, research, and solutions to problems of inequality in all its forms.

The Stone Program is committed to the development of a new generation of PhD scholars diverse in race, ethnicity, socioeconomic background, gender, and national origin. The program particularly encourages those from historically underrepresented groups and communities to apply. The PhD Scholar fellowships are open to domestic and international students, regardless of immigration status.

Part II: Research statement (Submit as a separate document)

Please tell us about your interest in participating in the Stone Program in Wealth Distribution, Inequality, and Social Policy. Discuss your related academic work to date in this area and your research plans as a PhD Scholar in the program. Recommended length: 1000-1200 words. Please use single-spacing with an extra line space between paragraphs.

Tips: In general, the strongest applications outline a compelling research agenda, with a clear question or set of questions that might form the general basis for the student's empirical research paper in the Inequality & Social Policy proseminar sequence. While faculty recognize that most applicants are still at an early stage in their work, applicants are advised to approach the statement much like a research proposal, outlining with as much specificity as possible why their interests constitute an important area of inquiry, what preliminary hypotheses or ideas they have, and how they might go about investigating them.

Part III: Existing Financial Support Information

- If your support consists of the standard six-year GSAS fellowship package, you may simply check this box. (That is, tuition and stipend for G1-G2 years; tuition and TF for G3-G4 years; tuition for G5 year; and tuition and dissertation completion fellowship for final year. This package may or may not include summer funding).
- If your graduate fellowship support does not correspond to the standard six-year GSAS package described above, or if you hold external fellowship resources, please identify these fellowships in the grid below. This would include students who hold either external awards (e.g., NSF, Soros, Ford, Truman) or Harvard fellowships covering additional stipend years. Please indicate anticipated G-years in which fellowships will be used and stipend amounts.

G-year	Tuition source	Stipend source	Stipend amount
